Did you know that having employer sponsored benefits directly relates to employee satisfaction? Employees that are provided benefits by their employer were 41% more likely to report feeling cared for and 26% more likely to report feeling energized while at work as well as 24% less likely to leave<sup>1</sup>.

Having a BIO Health Plan is a great way to increase the portion of your workforce that feels you care and helps them achieve their best possible performance. Benefits that employees only get to experience if they become sick don't have the same visibility as something they get to experience more frequently, that's why it's important to offer varied and flexible benefits like:

- Support with mental health carriers, resilience and relationship issues
- Help finding and coordinating care
- Virtual health care
- Innovations to help address health conditions
